THE GREAT FIGHT.

Fitzsimmons and Sharkey Shake Hands.

EIGHT ROUNDS WERE FOUGHT WHEN REFEREE EARP

Decided That Sharkey Had Won On a Foul and so Decided by the Referee.

Sharkey—Fitzsimmons

These noted pugilists came together last evening and banged each other to their hearts' content. It was all done for the money expected to be made out of it and whatever glory there might be in being called a champion From all accounts woman get of the mill either through the press or from those who witnessed the fight, it is quite evident that Fitzsimmons was much the best fighter and that Sharkey developed staying qualities worthy of a better cause. The rules of the ring were evidently broken by both parties at different stages, but the final knock out was accompanied by such a foul blow that the decision went against the practical winner. It is called a foul blow from the fact alone that the referee so decided.

The decision appears very much like the famous Dred Scott decision some time previous to the rebellion, where by the law was given to the North and the negro to the South. Fitzsimmons gets the credit of being by far the best sparrer and Sharkey takes the coin.

The latter no doubt will be satisfied with the settlement of the case, but Fitzsimmons does not want the empty honor in the public's estimation, of being the best fighter without having the money accompany that decision.

It was 10:14 o'clock when the first round commenced, it having taken a considerable time and wrangling to decide upon a referee. After much trouble Wyatt Earp, one of the famous brothers so well known in Arizona during troublesome times, was selected to act. Fitzimmons did not like the selection but to save further time and wrangle, consented to the selection.

There were variations during the several rounds fought but all seemed to end in favor of Fitzimmons where there was any decisiveness at all. As stated before Fitzimmons is the most scientific fighter of the two, but Sharkey is strong on the rough and tumble business. No one who witnessed the fight doubts that the former was the best man.

As such exhibitions are games in this special form the following account of the betting will give one an idea of the conclusions arrived at by the sporting fraternity.

The betting at Corbett's was heavy. The total amount put up was $28,069, divided up as follows: On the straight fight $13,660; on Sharkey staying a certain number of rounds, $10,986; in the Paris mutuals, $4423. The Paris mutua's, the best criterion of the public mind on the fight were divided as follows: Sharkey to win, $1395; Fitzsimmons to win in one or two rounds; $443; in three or four, $741; in five or six, 572; in seven or eight, $552; in nine or ten, $720; total, $4423. The pools on the straight fight were little changed, being 20 to 9 nearly all day long.

At Corbett's all bets will be paid off according to the referee's decision Harry Corbett said at midnight: "The report that I will not pay off the money in my hands according to the decision of the referee is incorrect. It was the understanding that in this house, at least, all bets went with the referee's decision. No matter how I felt personally about the matter, and I really have no feeling in the matter, I could not change from the rule of the house. I understand generally that Wyatt Earp has decided in favor of Sharkey.

The following telegram from J. J. Corbett was received at San Francisc. Whether Sharkey will pay any attention to it or not remains to be seen. There is a probability that the reply will be a sarcastic one.

NEW YORK, December 3.—To Sharkey, San Francisco, I am sorry for Mr. Fitzsimmons' foul tactics, which prevented you from beating him in ten rounds without a foul. I am ready to meet you on or before January 1st 1897.

JAMES J. CORBETT.

Better Accomodation.

For sometime past freight has come into East Berkeley so freely that cars were forced to remain on the side track some time before teamsters could unload them and allow of their departure. In order to correct this the Southern Pacific Railroad Company has decided to erect on University avenue between Shattuck avenue and Stanford place, a commodious warehouse for the reception of freight. The building will consist of two stories and be in size 12x40 feet, the lower floor being of cement.

When the freight cars arrive, the goods will be placed in the warehouse thus leaving the cars free to be taken away quickly. It will be a great accommodation to the teamsters and those having freight come to town over the railroad.

HARBAUGH EXPIRES

Injured a Few Days Ago in Collision With Dr. Blood's Buggy

Death Wins

Felix Harbaugh, the unfortunate wheelman, who on last Sunday morning collided with a buggy in which were riding Dr. W. H. Blood and Harvey Wilson, died at 5 o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. Harbaugh expired at his home 2038 Alameda avenue, Alameda, to which place he was taken directly after the accident.

Death was the result of injuries inflicted at the time of the collision, when it was supposed that an abrasion on Harbaugh's head was of little or no consequence, but later proved to be a fracture of the skull.

After the accident the injured man was removed to a drug store, where Dr. Dunn dressed his wounds. Dr. Blood was also in attendance, and did what he could to relieve the patient's suffering. When the wounds had been dressed Mr. Harbaugh was removed to his home, where Dr Blood treated him.

Serious internal injuries developed almost instantly, and the patient gradually grew weaker, until yesterday morning, when he died. As soon as informed of Harbaugh's death Dr. Blood telephoned for information regarding the inquest, which will be held this afternoon at Smiley's undertaking parlors in Alameda.

Dr. Blood maintains the accident was unavoidable, and says: "The old gentleman was not looking toward us, and we did not see him until the horse was almost upon him. Then we yelled to him to get out of the way and we tried to swing the horse around, but it was too late, for the old gentleman was already down."

INCORPORATED.

At Emeryville by a Large Majority.

A TIE FOR THE OFFICE OF TOWN CLERK.

T. H. Williams Says Town Affairs Will be Conducted in a Business-Like Manner.

Incorporation Carries.

The racing men and their friends in the Emeryville district gave the horses a rest yesterday and devoted their attention to politics. It was incorporation day in the district and every man who favored a new town was out and at work. As a result of this united effort the proposition to establish the new racing town of Emeryville was carried by a handsome majority.

The election passed off quietly. Everything was conducted in a fair manner. At Park and San Pablo avenue, where the race track employees voted ballots were, one way—for incorporation.

Manager Lissack, the personal representative of Thomas H. Williams, managed the fight in this precinct, being assisted by Superintendent Allen of the racetrack. The men who opposed incorporation were very scarce in this precinct. James Landregan was one of the few in opposition.

"Our estate owns forty acres near Butchertown," said he, "but we cannot cut it into lots because nobody will buy them. All we can do is to raise hay. With this new town we will be assessed for improvements and still not be able to sell our property. However, I gave up the fight days ago. It was a certainity that we would be snowed under at the polls today."

At the stock yards the butchers all voted for incorporation. Although there were two tickets in the field the candidates on both of them were favorable to the butchers and racing men. The regular ticket, headed by J. S. Emery, had the advantage for the reason that the names were printed on the regular ballot. The opposition candidates had to have their names written in except in the case of Town Clerk. There were two candidates for this office, J. C. Coburn on the regular ticket and J. George Smith on the opposition.

Thomas H. Williams, in discussing the situation after election, said:

"Now all this talk about establishing Monte Carlo in this district is bosh. We are going to have a town government in Emeryville that will equal any in the State. Representative men are on the Board of Trustees and they will do their full duty. We will have improvements made in the district that will please the people. So far as allowing all kinds of gambling games to run there is nothing in such talk. We will simply have our pools on the races and nothing more.

A great deal has been said about this new town that is not true. In the first place the people at the stock yards were a great deal more interested in this incorporation than we were. Why? Because sixteen years ago they were driven out of East Oakland as a nuisance and they feared being driven out of their present location if annexation was made to Oakland. Now they are safe. Then, too, we had a reason for desiring incorporation. We do not fear the present Board of Supervisors, nor the one to come, and in fact we felt as though we could not be disturbed for at least four years. But the California Jockey Club has expended a large sum of money on this track, and we do not want to take any chances. A crank might get on the board who would give us a lot of trouble. Of course he could not stop our racing, but he could annoy us. It is just such things as this that we want to avoid; and that is why we favored a new town."

"And you can add," said Superintendent Allen, 'that I will work hard for good roads in the town and give the people electric lights. We will have a town that will equal any in the State."

The count last night showed the result to be as follows: For incorporation, 152; against incorporation, 28. Trustees—W. H. Christie 194, J. T. Doyle 182, F. J. Stoer 174, J. S. Emery 177, W. Fieldwick 190, H. Reillard 29, G. Peladeau 22, H. A. Randieu 32. The first five gentlemen were elected Trustees. For Town Clerk, J. C. Coburn and J. George Smith, each received 111 votes. Charles G. Mayborn was elected Treasurer and J. T. Cushing chosen Marshal.

WALKED OUT

The Seniors Including All the Battalion Officers.

The Seniors Walked Out

Lieutenant Frank L. Winn's military examination in North Hall yesterday afternoon was not so serious a matter as he intended it to be. When his class in theoretical military science and tactics had assembled he requested one of his patrolmen to write a number of "ex" questions on the board, and remarked that the hour would be devoted to written quiz. Now, the Army officer always announces an examination beforehand, and the seniors stared in blank amazement. They recovered in a moment, and over three-quarters of the class walked out, including all the battalion officers. It was the Lieutenant's turn to be surprised. The seniors say they came expecting a lecture, and found an examination, which, according to their opinion, was not giving them a chance to study.

Lieutenant Winn's reason for spring ing the "ex" was that he feared his understudies would "cut" if they knew of it. "Any way," he said afterward, "I gave a written exercise just one year ago yesterday, and they should have kept track of affairs."

High Will Appeal.

The case of Gavin Dhu High is to be appealed. Preliminary steps to that end were taken today by Attorney Emil Nusbaumer, who is defending him. Judge Wood made an order today admitting High to bail in the sum of $1000, and the appeal will be taken at once. No further attempts will be made to secure the release of High on a writ of habeas corpus.

High has been offered a position on an eastern newspaper and will go East in a few days. It will not be necessary for him to be present for if he loses his case in the Superior Court it will be taken to the Supreme Court. High made an effort to have Judge Wood cut the amount of his bail down, but his request was denied.

The application of High for a writ of habeas corpus will be formally denied by Judge Ellsworth tomorrow.

Contra Costa Contract

The Contra Costa County Board of Supervisors has let a contract to Cotton Bros. & Co., of Oakland, to build a bridge across Wolf creek at Perrin's ranch. There were submitted four different plans of a steel bridge, the prices of which were $790, $1,250, $1,481 and $1,690. The board wanted the best bridge they could get, and so finally accepted the fourth proposition for a steel bridge. The bridge is to be sixty-six feet long, in the clear, and is to replace the present wooden bridge, which has been declared unsafe.

Against the Crematory.

The West Oakland Improvement Club has prepared a protest against the burning of garbage on Peralta street, and it will be presented to the City Council. Colonel John P. James de Fremery offered the club a Park site at Kirkham and Union streets at a figure below the assessment on it.

Jordan, Hermar Gaud, Drs. Kitching, Baldwin, Dunn and Mayon-

Dr. Leander S. Jamison, who was sent to prison for fifteen months for invading the territory of South Africa, has been liberated from Holloway Jail in compliance with the order of the Home Secretary, Sir Matthew White Ridley. Jamison is a very sick man and recently had an operation performed upon him.

AT THE FAIR

Episcopal Entertainment Well Attended

SHATTUCK HALL CROWDED WITH VERY HUNGRY PEOPLE

The Larder Exhausted by the Multitude Who Wanted Much More.

The Episcopal Fair.

The Guild entertainment given in Shattuck Hall last evening was a greater success than even the most sanguine would have thought of.

The tables were well covered with a very large variety of contributed articles for sale and were presided over by saleswomen who would command high salaries in large establishments if their services could be commanded.

At half past five the dinner was announced and from that time until about half past six o'clock when only cold meats were left to serve, the tables were filled with as hungry mortals as one would wish to look at and see them enjoy what was set before them.

The tables were well covered with a very large variety of contributed articles for sale and were presided over by saleswomen who would command high salaries in large establishments if their services could be commanded.

At half past five the dinner was announced and from that time until about half past six o'clock when only cold meats were left to serve, the tables were filled with as hungry mortals as one would wish to look at and see them enjoy what was set before them.

The tables could only accomodate 100 persons and a chair was empty only long enough for one person to get up and another sit down. With all of this unexpected rush there were not enough of the loaves and fishes to go around. In consequence there was some disappointment which was relieved by the gladness to know that the ladies were doing so well in their endeavors. They all worked hard to prepare the dinner which was unexceptionable and only from the fact that it was quickly disposed of there was nothing to mar the happiness of those engaged in the undertaking.

But few outs de of those who do the actual work know how much labor is expended upon an entertainment of this kind. The public are thankful to the ladies for what they did on this occasion and the ladies in turn thank the public for its liberal patronage.

During the evening Miss. Laura Cohn rendered a piano solo; Miss Gertrude Tedball recited; A. Sydney Rohrer gave a selected vocal solo; Mabel Chamberlain gave a violin solo and Edith Russel followed with a vocal solo. These volunteers were handsomely applauded upon the conclusion of each one's number.

This evening there will be an entertainment consisting of ten numbers of which the steroptican views of the King's River Canyon, taken by J. N. Le Conte will be quite prominent. Those who will take part in the various exercises are the Misses Laura Cohn, Evelyn Henry, Gertrude Tedball, Clarabell Munsell, Mrs. Robert Van Zant, Professor H. Clay Wysham and W. N. O. V. Lange will also exhibit stereopticon views. The lantern service will be by S. C. Partridge. Harvey Loy will be the accompanist.

After His Judgment.

The real estate belonging to George S. Montgomery, the wealthy Salvationist in East Oakland, was levied upon yesterday by Sheriff White in favor of John W. Tompkins City Clerk of Oakland.

This was done because of a judgment in Judge Frick's Court in behalf of Tompkins and his wife for $12,500 Mrs. Tompkins two years ago was a guest at a hotel of Montgomery's in Cazadero. While riding out one day in a stage belonging to Montgomery the vehicle was overturned and Mrs Tompkins sustained injuries for which both she and her husband brought suit for damages. A judgment was rendered for the amount specified

The property upon which the execution was levied is located in block 57 and Park Place, Laundry Farm, and consist of two parcels of real estate, one of which comprises 67.706 acres and the other about 7 acres.

The Company ordered the bill paid out of the funds of the company. First assistant foreman Frank Teague was elected foreman to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of S. H. Borkheim. Acme Actors.

Extensive preparations are being made by the Acme Club for its minstrel show to be given in the Macdonough Theatre, Dec. 7th. The bill boards about town contain flaring posters announcing the event setting forth in forceful manner the various talents of the performers. The show will be produced at an expense of at least $500, and the members are determined to clear at least as much more. There is no doubt that the affair will be attended with the success that generally favors the Acme's efforts.

A PUBLIC BUILDING.

From time to time the GAZETTE has called the attention of the public to the fact that other towns are having money appropriated by the general government for the purpose of erecting public buildings and that there was no reason why Berkeley should not have one. We doubt if there is a single person within the boundary lines but what would like to see a building erected by the government but how many are there who will put themselves out one iota to accomplish the fact. One may not know how to do that amount of good should he be able. The way to accomplish it is through having a certain amount of business transacted with the postoffice.

There is an unwritten law which amounts to this. When the postoffice of any town does business enough it shall be entitled to a building constructed for that particular purpose.

Upon inquiries at the postoffice department in Berkeley we find that while in one respect the business done is about enough to entitle it to the same privileges granted elsewhere, yet the receipts for that amount of business was not within twenty-five per cent of what it should be.

One way to correct this would be for everybody who lives in Berkeley to do all post office business here. A very important revenue for any office is the sale of stamps. The most of people never give it a moment's thought as to where they will buy their stamps as long as they are purchased from any post office or authorized agency.

A great many of our people are engaged in business at San Francisco and no doubt buy what stamps they may need in their business at one of the sub-agencies established in that city for selling them. Now, if all the people living here would make a common combination for the purpose of obtaining whatever amount of stamps they might use at the Berkeley office it would soon produce the effect which we have heretofore stated.

In another way there would be a help towards it and we are situated so that the method will apply and that is by having districts for the gathering and distribution of the mails instead of regular post offices as at present. We have now four post offices within the town. In other places where it occurs necessary to have many distributing points, districts are formed and sub-post offices are made. All of these are are subject, however, to the main office and the receipts go to the credit of the Central Station.

In this way could the business of the town be concentrated and enable it to get from the government a public building for mail purposes.

REPRESENTATION.

Alameda County has a solid delegation on the Republican side in the Legislature soon to convene At no time has a better opportunity been presented for the delegation to obtain what it may desire. It must continue to work solidly however. There are so many matters coming up where there will be divisions that Alameda County by keeping its forces together can always make a winning.

The foundation work of cementing the delegation has already been performed. The first and probably most important work for it to do will be in the formation of the various committees. This is particularly important as much labor will be saved hereafter if the machinery is put in operation to work properly.

In the matter of Chairmanship of the Judiciary, as important a committee as that of Ways and Means the Oakland Enquirer for good and sufficient reasons opposes the election of Dibble of San Francisco for that position.

Judge Waymire has been indorsed by the County delegation and as he is in every way fitted for the position the fight should be solidly made for him.

FEES OR SALARIES.

Generally it has been decided that a community is better off when it has salaried officers than when the fee system is in vogue. Many reasons are given pro and con but experience has proven that as a rule there are less objections to the salary system than the other. As there are exceptions to all rules we presume that there are some good reasons why an exception should be made in our town system of paying its employees. e understand that at the next meeting of the Board of Trustees a petition will be presented asking a change in one of the positions under the control of the Board.

Whether any change will be made depends upon what light the Trustees may look upon the petition when presented.

OUR NEXT ELECTION.

More or less talk is now being indulged in concerning the town election to take place in April next. To be sure there is but little except talk as yet. As all other public events of greater importance having been decided it is very natural that the question of home affairs should again become uppermost.

It is well to consider matters over very thoroughly before mapping out the campaign. The general opinion as far as we can learn is for the Republicans to nominate a ticket on party lines.

UNIVERSITY SAMPLES

The grounds of the University being used as an agricultural sample station, we trust that the suggestion would not be amiss of allowing residents of Berkeley an opportunity to make experiments in the way of producing different articles which are grown in the earth. Provision should be made similar to those of the Bureau of Agriculture at Washington which calls upon those citizens who wish to try the various kinds of seeds annually distributed by the government, free of charge, for experimental purposes, to render a report of the success or non-success of the experiment.

A large amount of data could be probably gathered which would, no doubt, be beneficial to Berkeley. The kind of soil and the location used; the different atmospheric conditions and other matters could be fully given and from these much valuable matter could be deducted.

THE EMERYVILLE ELECTION.

The decisive vote by which the election was carried yesterday in favor of organizing a town to be called Emeryville should put an end to the raising of any or all legal quibbles in the matter. With a vote of about five to one it shows the feeling of a large majority of the citizens which should be respected. In the organization of the Board of Trustees it will be right and proper to make Joseph Emery its president.

He has long been identified with that section of Alameda county having many years ago purchased one hundred and sixty acres tract. From the time he took possession he has always been a promoter or something for the benefit of the public, not only at his immediate surroundings, but in other enterprises in the county and in various parts of the State.

The history of the place would not be properly written if his name should be left out as the first presiding officer the new town had.

He is thoroughly competent and reliable and can do more than any other man to give the place which will bear his name a good start in the history of a town.

Judge Sanderson rendered judgment for the Southern Pacific Railroad Company in the Robinson "stop over" ticket suits. It involved money to the amount of over half a million dollars.

The Greatest Science.

Do you know how LITTLE you really KNOW about the science of life insurance? If you do you are a wise man. If you are an attorney and have an intelligent conception of the science of insurance, I shall be pleased to make your acquaintance. You will be the first lawyer I have ever met who has more than a smattering of knowledge on this subject, and "a little learning is a dangerous thing" for your clients. If you are a physician, you may understand the law that governs "mortality." This would be expected. But you must understand more than that, to have even a faint glimpse of insurance. It is one of the "pillars." If you are a banker, you may understand something of the law of finance. You may understand this thoroughly, and yet be intirely ignorant of the just value of a given contract. If you are a banker and have a good understanding of insurance, I shall be glad to meet you. I have not met a banker who had an intelligent conception of a life insurance contract.

Why is this? Because the science of life insurance is greater than the science of law. It is greater than the science of medicine. (Sir Astley Cooper declares the science of surgery to be the science of butchery.) It is greater than the science of banking. And just as long as it remains true "that the sum of the whole is equal to the sum of all its parts" just so long will scientific insurance form a study that is deeper and wider than any of the parts of which it is composed. The Mutual Life of New York is the largest financial institution on the globe, placing Bank of England with its multi-millions in the shade. The Oakland office is at 962 Broadway.

To the Public. We want to interest you in the matter of Gas Stoves. We cansell you a stove which will do all your cooking for a less sum than you can buy either a wood or a coal stove and the price of gas will make it cost less per month than any other fuel you can buy.

You must have heard of the stoves from your neighbors for more than 1000 are in use in this territory.

They broil, roast and fry. They don't heat the kitchen. They are clean.

If you use 1500 feet a month you get gas at $1.75 per thousand. We sell stove for $12.00 placed in your house and you are instructed in its care and management. It don't cost you anything for all time to keep it in repair and condition as we do that for you free of expense.

We have stoves with waterback attachments and a variety of patterns of stoves ranging in price from $12.00 upwards.

We trust that you will find time to call and investigate the conveniences and advantages attending the use of gas for heating stoves of all kind from $12.00 upward. Yours very respectfully, JOHN A. BRITTON, Secretary.

Plants That Spread Quickly.

The dandelion is an old world flower, not native in America, traveling to the north and on some of the highest of our western mountains. But somehow it was brought here, perhaps from England, in old colonial times. Now we see its golden heads and feathery balls at every grassy roadside, the "clocks" the boys and girls blow to tell the hour. A few years ago farmers in the northwest found a new weed, a vile, prickly weed, in their wheatfields. In a very short time this weed, the Russian thistle, has spread over wide acres of the best farm land in that part of the country and has done great injury to the crops.

How do these plants spread so fast and so far? They are not carried about and planted. No one would be so foolish as to sow Russian thistles. The mother plant must have ways of her own for sending her offspring abroad into the world. Plants propagate themselves in two ways, from seed or from buds. Sometimes these buds are borne on slender runners. A strawberry plant, after it has blossomed, begins to send out such runners, with buds, unfolding tufts of leaves, along them. These tufts are at first connected with the parent plant, but later the runners between break away, and each tuft becomes a new plant. Many grasses, like Bermuda grass and the troublesome quick or couch grass, have creeping stems, each joint sending out a bunch of roots below and bud on the upper side. If you try to hoe up such grasses, you only make matters worse, for each joint when cut off is ready to form an independent plant. Such grasses spread very fast and soon take possession of the land they get into.—Thomas H. Kearney, Jr., in St. Nicholas.

Another on the List.

"Hello, Stimson, what's all that whistling about? Not trying to raise the wind, are you?"

"No," said Stimson, unpuckering his mouth from a violent effort to produce "Benny Havens, Oh." "I am merely reviving old melodies."

"But I never before even suspected you of being musical," and his friend looked anxious.

"Oh, I say, bang it, can't a fellow whistle without being called to task about it?"

"Not when whistling is so seldom heard that it is in danger of becoming one of the lost arts."

"Well, I must own up, I see. I am not whistling for amusement, not for the music that's in it. I am whistling for my health."

"Your health? Nonsense!"

"There's no nonsense about it. Look at my chest. It has increased two inches in girth since I began to whistle. The exercise has done it. I have expanded the muscles, and the pull on the ribs has strengthened them, and my general health is benefited. You see, I have employed a new method of compressed air treatment."

"You mean that you have added one more to the list of cranks."

"Nothing of the kind. But I have given the idiots who are always asking fool questions one more question for their repertories. S'long."—Detroit Free Press.

An Actor's Stories.

Mr. Merrison recounted two anecdotes in his experiences in playing Faust. At one place the trapdoor through which he disappears in the fifth act refused to work, and, to use his expression, "his plume stood erect."

"Can't you open it?" he asked in an excited tone.

There was an awful pause for a moment, which away in the gallery somebody sang out:

"Holy Moses, hell's full!"

At another time, while breakfasting at a hotel, he noticed that the colored waiter who brought him his meal kept staring at him. He told the waiter that he might go. "When I need you," he added, "I will send for you."

"Need me?" exclaimed the waiter in evident recollection of Mephisto. "Say, Mr. Morrison, I went to your show last night."

"And how did you like it?"

"Like it! Say, Mr. Morrison, that last scene was awful. But one thing consoled me. I couldn't see any nigger in hell!"—New York Letter.

Holmes and Kerr.

Of the many anecdotes illustrating the genial humor and prodigious memory of Oliver Wendell Holmes, the following was related by one of the poet's classmates, John Bozman Kerr of Maryland:

Mr. Kerr was as aristocratic in his notions as Holmes himself, and was so unusually particular about the spelling of his name that it became a laughing matter with the students. Twenty years after the class had graduated Mr. Kerr had occasion to visit Boston, and while there called upon his old classmate, then grown famous. When Mr. Kerr was ushered into Holmes' study, the poet hurried forward, and, seizing his old friend with both hands, cried heartily, "Welcome to Boston, Jock-ja-bo-zo-man-Ker-e," as fast as he could spell it.—Washington Post.

His Only Joke.

John Anthon, who lives in law libraries between the covers of an old calfskin treatise labeled "Anthon's Nisi Prius," was a gentleman of solemn visage, solemn mien and solemn address while at the bar. But he was known in a moment of impatience to be once funny. Opposed to a lawyer named Edmund J. Porter, he began his address to the jury by saying, "Now, gentlemen, I shall ask your aid to bottle up Porter," who quickly responded, "If they do, I shall foam."—Green Bag.

The Boy Was Willing.

Hired Boy (on a farm)—Kin I go fishin this afternoon?

Farmer—No. But be a good boy and work hard an mebbe next week you kin go to a funeral.

Hired Boy—Kin I go to yourn?—Epoch.

Kept His Head.

It is not safe to joke among an oriental people unless you understand their manners and customs. Lord Charles Beresford, who accompanied the Prince of Wales in India, relates a funny incident of the journey, which just escaped being a tragic one.

"We were elephant shooting in Ceylon," he says, "and were driving back to Colombo, when the horses in the wagonette showed signs of fatigue. Lord Aylesbury, who was on the box, took the reins from our Tamil coachman, whereupon the animals swerved just as we were crossing a rude bridge, and the whole equipage, passengers and all, were precipitated into the nullah below.

"No one was hurt. I playfully pointed the coachman with a bundle of elephants' tails and then told him to mount the box. At the same time I turned to the Malay sergeant and said in solemn tones:

"'Cut that man's head off.'

"He, thinking it an awful crime to upset the prince, instantly drew his saber and rushed at the coachman.

"Fortunately the coachman understood English and scrambled on to a ledge of rock out of reach. Seeing that my joke had nearly caused a catastrophe, I called out to the sergeant:

"'The prince has graciously pardoned him. Let him come down.'

"The coachman tapped himself on his shoulders, and there was no harm done, but if he had not understood English and had not got out of the way! As our English friends themselves are wont to remark, 'Only fawney!'"

Half Kaffir, Half Englishman.

If, as is sometimes held, though we ourselves are very strongly of the opposite opinion, the Hottentots and Bushmen of South Africa are not human creatures caught in the very act of developing from lower forms, but are the result of a generation from some higher type, then the creature resulting from a cross between the two might revert to the higher type and be of higher social feeling and intelligence power than either. We are reminded in such case of the case of an individual who was a cross between the English and Kaffir races, though we know that several such exist in South Africa. This man was certainly merely a composite of the two races, without any tendency to reversion. He was the son of an English gentleman; his mother was a Kaffir woman who had not been dragged under the feet of civilization.

The man was proud, determined, resolute. Self educated, he raised himself to a post of high trust under the English government. He combined the dash and courage of the Kaffir with the pride and intelligence of the Englishman. He had the fault, which is common to both his parent races, of being cruel and indomitable when opposed, but of the vices supposed to be inseparable from half castism—servility and insincerity—he had not a trace. He was a man and a gentleman. But whether if such crosses were common such men would often arise is quite another question.—Fortnightly Review.

Patsy Took It Bilin.

Patsy had been in the country only a few days and had not recovered from the effects of his ocean voyage. He complained of a headache, and his sympathetic aunt finally decided to give him a Seidlitz powder. She got two glasses and put the contents of the blue package into one and emptied the white package into the other.

"Now, you hold your mouth open," said his aunt, holding the glasses, one in each hand.

Young Patsy opened a spacious cavern, displaying two fine rows of molars, and, with a dexterous motion, his aunt mixed the contents of both glasses and poured the Seidlitz powder into his face. He splintered and coughed and ran about the room.

"Well, how did you like it?" asked his aunt smilingly when he had recovered somewhat.

"I wouldn't ha' minded it so much if ye hadn't give it to me whin it wuz bilin!" he gasped between chokes.

It cured Patsy's headache, however.—New York Sun.

A Valuable Rhyme.

James Smith, one of the authors of the celebrated "Rejected Addresses," was better paid for a trifling exertion of his versatile muse than any poet since the world began. One day he met the late Mr. Strachan, the king's printer, at a dinner party and found him suffering from gout and old age, though his intellectual faculties remained unimpaired. The next morning he transmitted to him the following jeu d'esprit:

Your fewer limbs so much far from stout
Who last I saw you walk,
The cause I presently found out
When you began to talk.
The power that props the body's length,
In due proportion spread,
In you mounts upward, and the strength
All's in the head.

This compliment proved so highly acceptable to the old gentleman that he made an immediate codicil to his will, by which he bequeathed to the writer the sum of £3,000, being at the rate of £375 for each line.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Lunatic's Comment.

Mr. Robert Garthony, the English entertainer, once gave a performance at the Prestwich Lunatic asylum. The inmates took his diverting monologue very well at first, but when he came to the portion of the performance in which he impersonates a testy old magistrate of 90 summers a woman rose with vehemence and shouted, "Fancy me being kept here while that man is left to run loose."

In 1828 a brass troy pound, procured by the American minister in London in the previous year, was declared to be the standard in the United States for that measure.

Eighteen days are required to make the journey between the isle of Teneriffe and New York.

Cremations.

It is noteworthy that though in each of the American crematories more men than women have been cremated the movement abroad was practically begun by women, Lady Dilke of England and a German woman, having been cremated at Dresden. When efforts were made in the years 1874-4 on the continent of Europe, in England and in the United States in favor of the cremation of the dead, Lady Rose Mary Crawshay was one of its prominent advocates. A number of well known women in this country have expressed themselves decidedly in favor of cremation. Among them are Olive Thorne Miller, Mrs. Lippincott, Mrs. J. C. Croly, Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Mrs. Alice D. Le Plongeon, the late Kate Field, Rose Elizabeth Cleveland and Edith Thomas. At a public meeting Mrs. Ballington Booth referred to the time when her body should be carried to the crematory. The total number of cremations in the United States from 1876, when the first crematory was established, to the close of 1895, was reported to be 4,647. The number of men cremated in New York is more than double the number of women.—New York Tribune.

A tramp tumbled out of a store, steed on his ear a moment and then collapsed in a heap.

"Hello!" cried a bystander. "What's the matter?"

"Excuse me, pard," said the vagrant, "I just went in there and asked that feller to help me out."—Philadelphia Record.

Contributors to Magazines.

One contributor states that he is a "gentleman" wishing to go abroad on a historical and antiquarian tour through Normandy, the only difficulty being that he has not sufficient means to accomplish his object. He therefore requests my father to send him £12 at once, and he, the writer, will immediately start and contribute gratuitously, he says, to The Cornhill an account of his journey. He trusts that if my father cannot do this he will make some other arrangement. The contributor thinks of going by Rouen, Caen, Bayeux, St. Michel and returning by Tours and Orleans. "You will perceive," he says, "that this is an original tour and contains many interesting points."

"Honored and admired sir," writes another in Johnsonian language from the depths of the country, "in the writer of this letter you would behold the unlucky, unfortunate and unworthy contributor of some poetical subjects to your influential and extensive Cornhill Magazine. Indeed, I have but received a day or two ago such a piece returned. I now try my hand at prose and send you a paper for the May number of the magazine." (The letter is dated March 27, and the editor and printers would have to bestir themselves.) "If the manuscript is returned," says the author, "I will send the postage necessary. May such a contingency be far off."—Cornhill Magazine.

Neighbors Only.

A car was going through the Lasalle street tunnel, says the Chicago Tribune, when the conductor began to collect the fares. About half way down the car sat a prim, elderly woman. Beside her was a curly headed boy, with a mischievous expression in his blue eyes. The woman paid her fare. The conductor hesitated.

"That boy's over age, madam," he said.

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"He's over 4 years old."

"Why, I guess he is," she said, turning around and looking at him. The boy laughed.

"And he takes up a seat the same as bigger folks," the conductor went on.

"So he does," replied the lady.

"Madam, you'll have to pay his fare."

"I don't see why," indignantly.

"He's your boy, and"—

The small boy could no longer restrain himself.

"I don't belong to her," he said, laughing, and he gave the conductor his nickel, but the woman somehow didn't seem to enjoy the mistake.
